An Introspection on Religion

I have learned diverse concepts about religion since childhood. My religious upbringing has enabled me to discover more about God and find comfort in Him. My parents were firm believers, and they ensured that I attended all religious activities as a child (Freiberger, 2018). Older believers helped me appreciate the existence of God and the need to follow religious teachings. Therefore, I have developed a strong belief in God even though He is invisible with the bodily eyes. I am convinced God is a source of strength and assistance when I am in need.

Religious celebrations that bring thousands of people together encourage and strengthen my faith. I feel overwhelmed when I see many people bowing their heads in respect of their creator. It helps me realize that God must be revered as He is everlasting. I have come to realize that all is vanity without God. We are all like flowers that appear beautiful today and dry out tomorrow (Fulton & Wood, 2018). As a human, I have nothing to be proud of because my life in this world is short. Since I am made up of flesh, I have no option other than to believe in my creator since I am mortal. As such, I need to improve my relationship with my creator to be forgiven and attain His grace.

Obedying religious teachings has influenced me to become more responsible for my actions and respect everyone in society. I have learned the need to honor my parents and the elderly. I now see other people as servants of God who need my assistance. Unlike in the past, believing in God has encouraged me to be concerned with issues affecting others.

Religion forms an integral part of my culture and relationship with God. It extends beyond what I believe in since it influences goals in my life. Religion provides guiding principles when making decisions. I have realized that religion is diverse; it is not limited to one belief or faith. Everyone has a religion. People who believe in the inexistence of a supernatural being, such as atheists, are considered to have a religion (Cloete, 2019). I feel that culture can be expressed through religion. Religion justifies reasons for making certain decisions and behaving in a given manner in my life (Fulton & Wood, 2018). Having a supernatural being to trust offers satisfaction and guidance when handling trivial issues. Religion is my source of strength and comfort whenever I am faced with challenging issues that need immediate resolutions. It makes me remember that I was created with a purpose, and I must remain focused regardless of the situation I am facing. Therefore, I believe I cannot make it without my God, who strengthens and shows me the way. I must engage in activities that praise Him and are in line with His teachings.

I have learned that religion entails a social-cultural system of beliefs, practices, behaviors, sanctified places, texts, worldviews, prophecies, organizations, and ethics. Religion influences my behaviors and perceptions by determining how I respond to issues affecting my life. Commitment to faith determines how I live, interpret situations, and behave. I am always determined to respect religious teachings by avoiding engaging in activities that can keep me away from God. He influences me to become more responsible for my actions and avoid behaving contrary to Bible teachings. The Bible guides my perception and attitude towards issues affecting my life. My worldview is mainly informed by religion.
