My Motivation to Study at ASU

Every child wants to see their parents happy, contented, and at peace. Some parents do not see their children excel in their careers because they die due to old age or disease. I count myself lucky to have my parents alive; therefore, I would like to make them proud. My parents have done their best to ensure that we make the best of life from what we have. We are not poor, but neither are we rich. We meet all basic needs well, and the luxuries remain that. Due to my parents' nature of work, we have had to live in different places and change schools constantly. I want to work harder so that I can give my parents some rest and happiness in their older years. I can achieve this is by joining a university and getting the skills I need to attain my dream job. Obtaining a scholarship to study at ABC State University (ASU) will give me a chance to actualize my dreams. I will pursue my career of choice as an investment banker at my dream university. It will also help me ensure my parents have a relaxed retirement.

I have experienced different challenges, and my family has been my anchor. Growing up, I moved to various schools, lost friends due to this displacement, and learned to fend for myself as we moved due to my parents' job commitments. In many cases, my mother chose to work from home and explore options over the internet because my father is a marketer who travels to different parts of the country as part of his job description. To avoid straining the family, we were forced to move with him and mainly stay in a place for only two or three years before the next move. The challenge is that this destabilized my learning, and I was unhappy for a long time. However, I found solace in my mother, who worked hard to ensure that the family remained comfortable despite the constant change. My father provided for everything else to the best of his ability. He decided to start a marketing firm, giving us a rare chance to live in one place for the last five years. To deal with my feelings of loneliness and unhappiness, I came up with a vision board. I downloaded photos of what I wanted to achieve in life, and ASU was one of my core goals. I dedicated time to achieving my goals. I followed blogs that discussed building personal skillsets to help achieve my goals.

I have always worked hard to attain my career and educational goals. I have remained consistent with a GPA of 3.7. My strong performances in mathematics, science, economics, and English placed me in a better position to choose different careers in any direction. I am passionate about becoming an investment banker. I reckon the future will be rife with people wanting to invest the money they make from crypto sales. I want to offer solutions and make people's lives better in the process. I consider this the best way of giving back to the community and my parents while earning a living.

ASU offers the best business-related courses in the State, and its positioning in the country is impressive. The learning resources at the institution are impeccable, and the hands-on experience from the tutors is essential in shaping my future beliefs and skills. The scholarship means I can help my father build his firm and give him a chance to retire early. He deserves time to rest after all the movement he has been subjected to while fending for us. My mother also deserves to have her husband home and enjoy retirement together.

I want to offer consultancy services for different investors in the long term. To achieve this, I need to build a reputation. The best way to start is by seeking opportunities to work at Goldman Sachs. Since this is a prestigious institution, I need to work harder to get an opportunity at Sachs. I will apply for my internship at Sachs because their training is phenomenal, and hands-on experience is essential. After working for 15 years, I will have built enough contacts to exit the formal market and give consultancy services.

My search for a scholarship at ASU plays well into my long-term goal of being an investment banker. The school provides adequate resources for students to gain the right skills that can help them transform their lives. Gaining a scholarship to ASU will be a great way to meet my personal goals, which will be an impetus to improve my parents' wellness. Having a stable job will ensure my parents live a comfortable life after retirement. However, I cannot achieve this without a scholarship. It is the only chance I have to fast-track my goal of owning an investment banking consultancy firm, giving back to my community and my parents, and following through all my career dreams.
